trees, avocado trees, fig trees and loquat trees. A rare find in the Coín area — not to be missed.

A generous single-storey home:

With 212 m² of built space and 130 m² of usable living area, the main house unfolds entirely on one level — no steps, no stairs, accessible comfort for everyone. You will find 3 spacious bedrooms, an indoor bathroom, an indoor WC and a fully equipped kitchen. Reversible air conditioning (heating and cooling) ensures your comfort year-round. Two large covered terraces complete the picture, perfect for morning coffee overlooking the garden or al fresco dinners in the evening.

The independent chalet: a major asset

At the heart of the property, a fully independent wooden chalet has its own studio, outdoor bathroom and outdoor WC. It is the ideal space for welcoming family and friends in complete privacy, but above all it is a tool for immediate profitability: seasonal rental via Airbnb, long-term rental, rural accommodation... The possibilities are many and the potential income very significant in such a sought-after tourist region as the Costa del Sol.

The summer kitchen: the heart of Andalusian life

Under a large covered pergola, a fully equipped summer kitchen awaits you: a brick wood-fired oven, worktop, sink, cupboards, ceiling fan and wrought-iron garden furniture. This is where life is organised, where meals are shared, where summer evenings stretch late into the night. A true open-air living room which, combined with the large swimming pool and tropical garden (majestic palm trees, bougainvillea in bloom, green lawn all year round), offers you an unrivalled quality of life.

The orchard: what makes this finca truly unique

This is where the property takes on its full value. Across the 9,106 m² of land, a fully operational agricultural holding is already in place. Almond trees — the most profitable and sought-after crop in the region —, orange trees, lemon trees, avocado trees, fig trees and loquat trees. This orchard generates regular income throughout the year and can directly contribute to the return on your investment. Almond trees in particular are highly valued on Andalusian markets: a stable, growing production that is easily commercialised through direct sales or local cooperatives.
